Veneration of the Holy Cross – 3rd week of Lent

The Orthodox Church reverently honors the Life-Giving Cross of the Lord, for from it shone forth God's love for mankind. Therefore, many feast days are dedicated to it. And during these days of Great Lent—where we commemorate the sufferings and death of Jesus Christ—it is once again presented for reverent veneration. During the time of the Savior's earthly life, execution by crucifixion was considered the most shameful, most agonizing, and most cruel of punishments. It was the penalty reserved for the most heinous of criminals. The torments endured by a person crucified upon the cross are impossible to describe. In addition to unbearable physical pain throughout the entire body, the victim suffered from terrible thirst and a mortal anguish of the soul. Death was so slow in coming that many victims languished upon their crosses for several days.

And if such were the sufferings of a man who had committed a crime, then how truly immense must have been the torments endured by the Son of God?! Though Himself sinless, Christ stretched out His Divine hands and allowed Himself to be nailed to the Cross. The Lord did not suffer for His own sake; rather, of His own free will, He ascended the Cross for us—so that, through His death upon the Cross, He might redeem the sins of the entire human race and grant it the hope of inheriting eternal and blessed life.

The Cross is as broad as the world itself, for the Savior died for the whole world—for each and every one of us. It is so long that it extends through all the ages—enduring as long as a single sinner remains on earth who can yet be saved, and until all that is contrary to the Lord has vanished away. It is also as high as the highest heavens; for when Christ was crucified upon the Cross, Heaven descended to earth, and the earth was lifted up to Heaven. As for the depth of Christ's Cross—that is something we, as human beings, can only surmise. But if the Cross, in its height, reaches unto the heavens, then in its depth it descends even unto hell—unto the deepest sinner.

Thus, through the Cross, our salvation was wrought; and therefore, we too must attain it by the way of the Cross—the path of Christian ascetic struggle, prayer, and labor. The Lord Himself commanded us: "If anyone desires to come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me" (Matt. 16:24).

Each of us bears a cross. It consists of the various misfortunes and tribulations, sorrows and griefs, that befall a person in this life. The Cross is a gift from the Lord; therefore, one must bear it with humility, neither murmuring nor faltering beneath its weight. For He gives to each according to his strength—only as much as one is able to bear.

In these days of Holy Great Lent, we seek our path to salvation. Yet few among us realize that the beginning and the end of this path is the Cross of Christ. Therefore, upon entering the church, fall down before the Holy Cross with faith. And according to your faith, it will reveal its life-creating power. For from the moment the Lord sanctified the shameful wood of the Cross with His Most Pure Blood, the Cross of Christ acquired such power that it became "the resurrection of the dead, the guide of the blind, the hope of the hopeless..." Imbued with this power, continue humbly to bear your own cross and to crucify upon it your sinful flesh. And from the vantage point of your cross, give thanks to the Lord for the precious privilege of imitating Christ through your own sufferings.

(Archpriest Seraphim Slobodskoy)

Если стыдишься креститься...

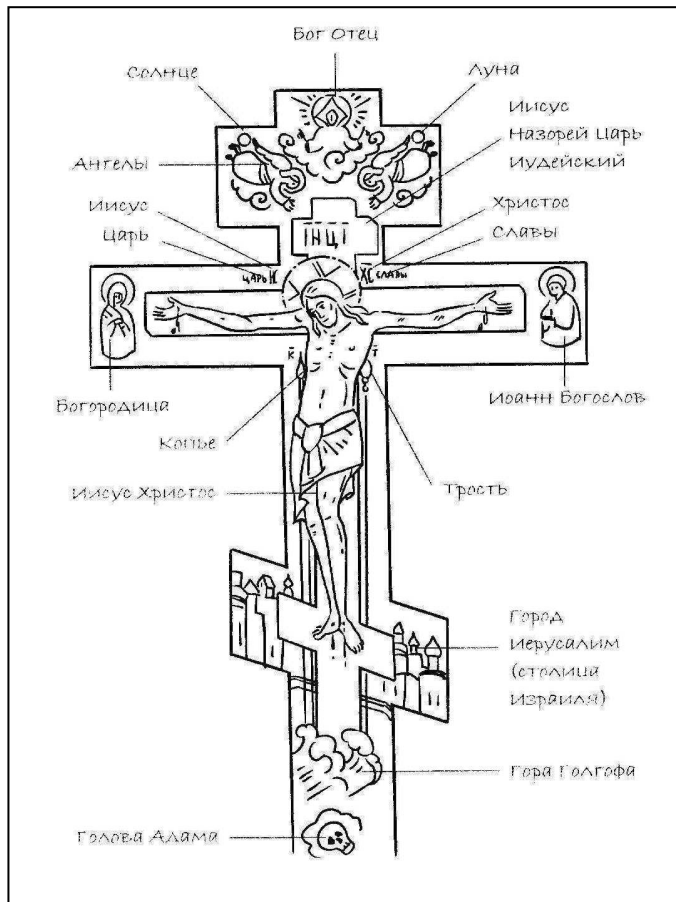

Одна женщина рассказывала батюшке Амвросию Оптинскому, что она стыдилась креститься в мирском доме, чтобы не увидели. На это он привел следующий пример: «П.В. С-на была в хорошем доме, ей захотелось пить, а батюшка Макарий благословил ей креститься. Она думает: 'Креститься нельзя и не креститься нельзя' -- и не стала пить. Так и ты: не хочешь креститься – не пей чаю.»

Также старец Амвросий писал одной духовной дочери: «Веками утверждённый опыт показывает, что крестное знамение имеет великую силу на все действия человека во все продолжение жизни. Поэтому необходимо позаботиться вкоренить в детях обычай почаще ограждать себя крестным знаменем, особенно перед принятием пищи, ложась спать и вставая, перед выездом, перед выходом и перед входом куда-либо.

И чтобы дети полагали крестное знамение не небрежно ... Ограждение себя крестным знаменем многих спасало от великих бед и опасностей»

(из жизнеописания старца Амвросия)

The Cross is the preserver of the whole universe;
The Cross is the Beauty of the Church;
The Cross is the support of Kings;
The Cross is the firmness of the faithful;
The Cross is the glory of Angels and the sting of demons.
